LISTENING THROUGH THE NOISE

*Each person was given two ears and one tongue so that one may listen more than speak.
(Hasdai Ibn Crescas, 14th/15th century, Spain)*

A story is told about a young girl who comes home from Hebrew school, eager to show her mother a drawing that she had done in class. As the girl walks into the house, her mother is washing the dishes. “Mommy, guess what?” she squeals, waving the drawing. Without looking up, her mother responds, “What?” “Guess what?” repeats the little girl. Again the mother asks, “What?” “Mommy, you’re not listening.” Still not shifting her focus from the dishes, she says, “Sweetie, yes, I am.” “But Mommy, you’re not listening with your eyes.” (as shared by Rabbi Dan Moskowitz)

What does it mean to truly listen? These days, with the distraction of smart phones lurking around every corner we are lucky if we manage to get someone else’s “half-attention,” let alone complete attention with actual eye contact. As a society, while we are often physically present with one another, we are not always fully in each other’s presence. It seems that there is always something around to distract us from the dings and buzzes of our phones and our watches/fitbits, to the music playing in the background of a restaurant, to the TV screen or ipads that seem to be available everywhere from airports to our local malls. We can easily begin to understand why it is difficult for so many of us (myself included) to learn to “listen with our eyes,” when our eyes (and ears) are constantly being pulled in multiple directions.

How to listen fully, without distraction. This is the challenge. In Hebrew, when we want someone to pay attention we say “sim lev,” literally, “put your heart into it.” How often do we listen with our hearts – despite the noise that is constantly around us? A wonderful example of the importance of this type of listening can be found in the upcoming holiday of Purim. Complete with noise makers, yelling, and an often rowdy service where we are supposed to be listening to the Megillah reading, Purim is a useful frame in which to look at the challenges of listening amidst distraction.

One of the four mitzvot of Purim surrounds the obligation to “hear” the Megillah being read. The Shulchan Arukh (code of Jewish law), explains that:

We should cancel Torah study in order to hear the reading of the Megillah. All the more so for the rest of the mitzvot of the Torah because all of them are pushed aside before (in favor of) the reading of the Megillah. There is nothing for which the mitzvah of hearing the reading of the Megillah is overridden, except for the burial of a dead person who does not have anyone to bury him/her (according to its need) 687:2

Indeed when the custom of drowning out Haman’s name first began in the twelfth century, it was originally met with a good degree of opposition over fears that one could not possibly hear the Megillah through such noise. As we know, popular custom won out, and we were left with a holiday that emphasizes the importance of “listening,” despite the fact that we are sometimes surrounded by outside “noise.”

When was the last time that you truly felt that someone listened to you? How did you feel? How did the person let you know that you “mattered?” When do you listen fully, and when are you only “partially present?” What are the distractions that hinder you from being fully present? Is it your phone during a meeting? Is it your mind, that is racing with your “to do” list, and hindering your presence with the person who you are with? Is it your lack of comfort with eye contact, or the way that you are always “on the go,” and have trouble slowing down long enough to truly listen? Is it arrogance, because you feel that what you have to say is extremely important, or you have already “heard this” before?

I cannot claim that any of this is easy. In truth, I find that while I have learned how to listen more effectively throughout my rabbinate, this is something that I struggle with as well. Active listening, especially when distractions abound, takes practice, discipline, and a calming of the mind. And even when I “hear” what someone else is saying, the truth is that I am not always listening (just ask my family)!

Nevertheless, as Dr. Rachel Naomi Remen, author of Kitchen Table Wisdom, explains, we must challenge ourselves to do better:

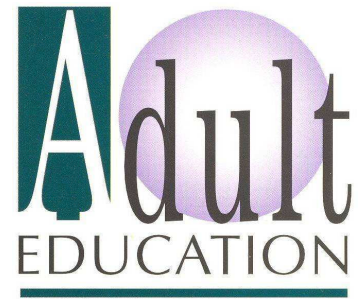

Perhaps the most important thing that we ever give each other is our attention. And especially, if it’s given from the heart. When people are talking, there’s no need to do anything but receive them. Just take them in. Listen to what they are saying. Care about it. Most times caring about it is even more important than understanding it...

This simple thing has not been that easy to learn. It certainly went against everything I had been taught since I was very young. I thought people listened only because they were too timid to speak or did not know the answer. A loving silence often has far more power to heal and to connect than the most well intentioned words.

The Hebrew word Megilah, literally means “scroll,” but is also connected to the word meaning that which is “revealed” or “uncovered.” May each of us be blessed with the wisdom to practice the sacred task of listening throughout our daily lives. In our homes, in our places of work, and in our everyday interactions large and small, may we actively work to understand that true wisdom can only be “revealed” and “uncovered” if we are willing to listen with an open and generous heart – despite the noise of the everyday groggers that surrounds us.

B’hatzlacha, good luck! And Hag Purim Sameach – May you have a joyous, and happy Purim!

Rabbi Schonbrun will be leading three different programs from January-May. All classes are free to all congregants, relatives, friends and open to the community.

Discovering Mussar

Mussar is a Jewish spiritual discipline that helps to nurture depth of soul and spirit. Guiding us through life's daily struggles and blessings, Mussar has much wisdom to offer as we seek to nurture our character and develop our souls. Through the exploration of these ancient Jewish teachings, we learn to engage in the practice of mindful living, bringing balance, healing, inner-peace, and a deeper appreciation for life's struggles and blessings.

Please join us for an introductory look at this powerful genre of Jewish instruction. Feel free to join for any one of the sessions or attend the entire series, as each lesson will stand on its own.

Wednesdays, through March 13, 7:30pm

Understanding Israeli Society through Song and Poetry

This course of study offers a fresh and fascinating examination of Israeli society since the birth of the State in 1948. Using the Zot Hashira Curriculum compiled by Rachel Korazim, we will be blessed to examine the leading poets, writers, and musicians of Israel during its first six decades of existence. By carefully listening to the authentic voices of Israeli writers and examining Israeli society in its original context through the use of literature, song, and historical context through the use of power point presentations, we will take a close look at Israeli society from some of its most accomplished poets and writers. Reflections of Israel are both self-critical and proud, offering insight into the Israeli national psyche during much of its existence. The curriculum includes works by Yitzhak Shalev, Rachel, Nathan Alterman, Yehuda Amichai, Ephraim Kishon, Balfour Hakak, Lysie Doron and Amos Oz.

Charoset

For most of us, this essential Passover Seder food calls to mind chopped apples, walnuts, cinnamon, and of course, our favorite Manischewitz wine (which can taste strangely similar to cough syrup!). But, did you know that there are many different types of charoset that can be found at Jewish Seders around the world?

Come and join us in our kitchen as we create and sample a variety of charoset recipes and learn about the history of this dish. If you have a unique and different recipe that you would like to share, please send it to Pam at pamc@torat-el.org and she will compile them for you to bring home and try!

If you have severe nut allergies, we will have a separate station to create a "nut free" charoset as well. Bring a friend and bring an appetite! We look forward to cooking with you. For planning purposes please make your reservation at www.torat-el.org or call the office at 732-531-4410.

A CONVERSATION WITH CHILDREN OF SURVIVORS

Join us as we commemorate Yom Hashoah, Holocaust Memorial Day, with a conversation including children of Holocaust survivors. Our discussion will include thoughts on what it was like growing up as the child of a survivor and how that affected one's world view and Jewish identity. We will also hear various perspectives on what concerns and hopes these children, many of whom are now parents and even grandparents, have when it comes to issues such as combating anti-Semitism and Holocaust education and awareness in the 21st century.

We are still looking for individuals to participate in our panel discussion. If you are the child of a survivor and are interested, please contact Rabbi Schonbrun at 732-531-4410, or email him at rabbi@torat-el.org.

Come on down to the Congregation Torat El Koreen Library and check out these exceptional new books:

The Tattooist of Auschwitz by Heather Morris (FMO) is currently on The New York Times best sellers list of books. The novel begins in April 1942 when Lale Eisenberg becomes prisoner 32407 in Auschwitz, Birkenau. Since he can speak many languages, he is put to work as a tattooist, tasked with permanently marking each prisoner with a five-digit number. He falls in love with Gita, one of the women he is tattooing, and eventually they escape in 1945, separate, meet again and settle and marry in Australia. In spite of the circumstances, The Tattooist of Auschwitz is a testament to the endurance of love and humanity under the darkest possible conditions.

Eternal Life by Dara Horn (FHO) is the story of Rachel and Elazar, young lovers at the time of the Second Temple, who become literally immortal. Two thousand years later, they are still alive, having outlived many husbands, wives and children, unable to die, constantly inventing new identities and guarding their secrets. We recommend everyone to check out our copy of this fascinating new book.

A Queen in Jerusalem by Tami Shem-Tov (JSh) is a lovely children's book that arrived just in time for Purim. It is about Malka who needs a Queen Esther costume for Purim, but her mother does not have time to make one. During her wanderings around Jerusalem, Malka encounters Boris and the artists from the Bezalel Art School and altogether they create a beautiful costume for Malka.

“Theodore Bikel: In the Shoes of Sholom Aleichem”

Sunday, March 24, 3:00pm

Popcorn and Soda

Portraits of two beloved icons -- Sholom Aleichem and Theodore Bikel -- are woven together in this enchanting documentary. The two men have much in common: wit, wisdom and talent, all shot through with deep humanity and Yiddishkeit.

Theodore Bikel's career spanned more than 150 screen roles (including an Oscar-nominated turn in The Defiant Ones) and countless stage and musical productions, was also the foremost interpreter of Sholom Aleichem's work. The film, “Theodore Bikel: In the Shoes of Sholom Aleichem,” combines Bikel's charismatic storytelling and masterful performances with a broader exploration of Aleichem's remarkable life and work.

The Monmouth Museum in Lincroft will present “Art & Healing: expressions of trauma and gratitude” March 16-May 19

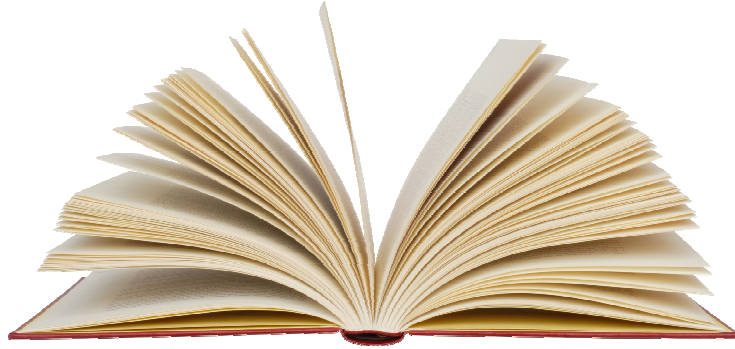

The exhibit, curated by our own Karen Starrett Belfer, highlights the role of how the creation of art can be part of the healing and recovery process after a diagnosis of cancer. The paintings, sculptures, photography and mixed media of the eight artists in this exhibit (including Karen) embody their individual response to their cancer experience.

There will be a panel discussion with the artists on Sunday, April 14 at 2 pm. The Monmouth Museum is located on the campus of Brookdale Community College. For more information, visit www.monmouthmuseum.org or call 732-747-2266

NO COMMUNITY SEDER THIS YEAR

Please note there will be no Community Seder this year.

CONGREGATION TORAT EL

Sunday, March 17 - 11:00am

Meet Adam Valen Levinson, author of “The Abu Dhabi Bar Mitzvah”

Armed only with college Arabic and restless curiosity, our author set out to “learn about the world 9/11 made us fear.” From a base in Abu Dhabi, he lunches in Taliban territory in Afghanistan, travels under the watchful eye of Aleppo’s secret police, and risks shipwreck en route to Somalia.

Traveling through many Islamic countries, Levinson finds that people who pray differently often laugh the same and he learns that we cannot live by decisions born of fear.

Adam Valen Levinson is an affiliate of the Middle East Institute in Washington, D.C., and a fellow at the Center for Cultural Sociology at Yale University, where he studies humor as a key to cultural understanding.

Pre-Paid $15 per person/$20 at the door.
