CREATING A PLACE AT OUR SEDER FOR ALL

What was the most memorable Passover Seder you ever attended? What made it so memorable? Was it the Passover Seder ritual itself, the people in attendance, or the simple fact that you were invited to someone else's home for a Passover meal? It is said that one of the most widely observed Jewish practices is attending or hosting a Passover Seder. According to one survey put out by the Pew Research Center in 2021, 62% of Jews in America held or attended a Passover Seder. In our community, I often find that those who participate in this ritual are invited to the homes of close family and friends. And while that is a lovely way to spend the holiday, I know that there are also people who sometimes "slip through the cracks," who might not have a place to go. Some of them may be happy to have a quiet Seder at home, but I often wonder if others wouldn't mind being asked by someone to join in their family ritual.

Inviting those "in need of" a Passover Seder is not just something that is "nice to do," it is also one of our most ancient spiritual practices. It is something that lies at the core of what it means to be a people celebrating "freedom." Indeed, the central maggid section of the Haggadah begins with a call to do just this:

Ha Lakhma Anya – This is the bread of poverty and persecution that our ancestors ate in the land of Egypt. Let all who are hungry (kol ditrikh), come and eat. Let all who are in need (kol dikhfin), come and share the Pesach. This year we are still here. Next year in the land of Israel. This year we are still slaves. Next year, free people.

Though the origins of this piece of text may be a bit later than the period of the Talmud, when Aramaic was the vernacular, it is often pointed out that this is the only text in the Haggadah to be written completely in Aramaic. One common suggestion for this is that the author of the text wanted to make sure that the majority of people reading this text when it was written would be able to understand its central teaching: Don't leave anyone behind on Passover. Make sure that everyone who is "in need," has a place to go. Rabbi Joseph Soloveitchik, a prominent 20th century Orthodox scholar, reminds us of this when he explains that:

Although they may initially seem redundant, the two invitations we issue in Ha Lakhma Anya – "Let all who are hungry, kol dikhfin, enter and eat" and "Let all who are in need, kol ditrikh, come and celebrate Passover" – in reality are not. Kol ditrikh means those who are in need – but not in need of bread. Whoever is in need of bread, dikhfin, is hungry. Kol ditrikh, refers to one who is alone, who has a lot of matza and wine but no home or family. There are indeed many ways to be included among the kol ditrikh. The invitation to "all who are in need" is not yeitei – ve-yeikhol, "to eat with us," rather, it is to spend Pesach with us, yeitei v'yifsakh, "to celebrate with us." It is an invitation addressed to unfortunate and lonely people. They might be millionaires; it is completely irrelevant. Whoever is in need should come and celebrate. Rabbi Joseph Soloveitchik, A Night To Remember

Rabbi Lord Jonathan Sacks, the former Chief Rabbi of the United Hebrew Congregations of the British Commonwealth, taught that:

"This is a strange invitation"... What hospitality is it to offer the hungry a taste of the suffering? In fact though, this is a profound insight into the nature of slavery and freedom. As noted, matzah represents two things: it is the food of slaves, and also the bread eaten by the Israelites as they left Egypt in liberty. What transforms the bread of oppression into the bread of freedom is the willingness to share it with others... Sharing food is the first act through which slaves become free human beings. One who fears tomorrow does not offer his bread to others. But one who is willing to divide his food with a stranger has already shown himself capable of fellowship and faith, the two things from which hope is born. That is why we begin the Seder by inviting others to join us. Bread shared is no longer the bread of oppression. Reaching out to others, giving help to the needy and companionship to those who are alone, we bring freedom into the world, and with freedom, God. The Jonathan Sacks Haggada, 23-25

Both of these teachings are reminding us that we have a sacred obligation to reach out to anyone who needs a place to go for a Passover Seder. Anyone who is in need of human connection (which is most of us) should be extended an invitation. As we gather to celebrate freedom, we should do so remembering that it is our willingness to share with others – friends, neighbors, extended family members, and perhaps even strangers – that is the key to creating a society filled with hope, free from oppression, a place in which we acknowledge the value inherent in each human being as a sacred, holy, creation.

So this year, if you are hosting a Passover Seder, consider inviting at least one or two people who you suspect might not already have plans. If you are not sure, call them up and ask them – the worst that can happen is that they will think you were being kind and considerate! If you do not have a place for a Seder, and are unable to host one this year, don't be embarrassed to ask your friends and family members what they are doing for Passover. If the answer is "nothing," then perhaps you can come up with a collective plan to have a Seder together. Not sure how to host a Seder? Give me a call and I am happy to offer you some tips and guidance. Want to attend a Seder, but you are embarrassed to ask someone directly? Give the office a call and we will work on finding you a place this year so that kol ditrikh, all who are in need, have a place to go.

May it be a Hag Kasher V'Sameach, a meaningful, joyous, and inclusive Passover for all!

Praying with Intention

"Services are too long Rabbi." "These prayers are all the same Rabbi." "I don't believe in God anyway, and certainly don't think that God needs my prayers Rabbi." "There is too much Hebrew and we go too fast Rabbi." If you have ever felt any of these things, if you struggle with incorporating prayer into your daily life, or if you are curious to learn more about traditional prayer and the meaning behind some of our oldest liturgical poetry, then this class is for you! Come and join us as we explore a new book just released by Rabbi Leonard Felder, entitled How These Words Can Raise Up Your Energy, and explore the deeper personal meaning that we might discover from some of our key Jewish tefilot, prayers. This class will be held in person.

Sale of Chametz

During the week of Pesach, it is forbidden for any Jew to own chametz. To avoid the unnecessary financial hardship that could result from requiring Jews to dispose of all items that are chametz, it is tradition to sell items of chametz to non-Jews for the week of Pesach. If you would like to sell your chametz to ensure that you abide by the Jewish law of not owning any chametz during the week of Pesach, please fill out the form below and return it to the Temple no later than Tuesday, April 4, 12:00pm.

Dear Rabbi Schonbrun,

I/we _____ (name) would like to appoint you as my/our agent to sell all items of chametz that will be in my/our possession at: _____.

This sale will be effective at 10:30am on Wednesday, April 5.

Siyyum Bechorim Calling All First Born (Men and Women) Wednesday, April 5 at 8:00am

According to Jewish tradition, the first-born son of a mother or father is required to fast on the day before Passover as an expression of thanks for the deliverance of the first-born Israelites who were spared from the Tenth plague. Fortunately, one can be exempt from this fast if he or she has the opportunity to participate in a seudat mitzvah, a festive meal following the completion (siyyum) of a unit of study. Join us for this annual tradition as we study together and celebrate our learning with a festive meal following minyan that will include lots of delicious chametz! Our study and feast will be held in memory and Esther and Ed Deitelbaum, Dr. Larry Karasic and Irving Bohm, and are sponsored by their family. All are welcome to join us even if you are not a first born.
