AM YISRAEL CHAI - BY LEORA SCHONBRUN

This month, I am honored to share my column with my daughter, Leora, who has recently returned from a semester in Jerusalem. Enjoy this powerful reflection.

For those of you who don't know me, my name is Leora Schonbrun and I just returned from studying for four months in Israel on a high school study abroad program for students in 10th and 11th grade called Tichon Ramah Yerushalayim (TRY). Along with 13 other kids, I decided to go on this program despite the ongoing war, and it was the best decision I've ever made in my life! What makes TRY what it is, is our ICC class. ICC is our Israel Core Course class, and I do not think I have ever learned as much in a class than this class. In these past three months we have studied the history of the Jews. We focus on the 4000 years of history of Jews in Israel. I have never once questioned the Jewish identity of the State of Israel and our right to be here, but that doesn't mean I was actually educated on the history of the State of Israel. Now I have had the privilege of learning the history of my people. Learning about Avraham and how he was sent by God to our promised land, all the way through the declaration of the State of Israel and the Independence War of 1948 and all the good and bad to come afterwards. I can now say proudly with my new background in Jewish history that I truly believe and know the right of the Jews to not only have a Jewish state, but for that Jewish state to be Israel.

Growing up going to a Jewish private school and a Jewish sleepaway camp I was never exposed to anti-Semitism. Yes, we would go to marches; yes, I knew there were shul shootings, but it always felt so far away from me and so distant. Anti-Semitism never felt present to me. When I left to go to public school I remember having a conversation with my teachers about anti-Semitism in high school and all I could think was how overdramatic they were being and that it's not like that anymore. I wish I could tell my 8th grade self how wrong I really was. My high school wasn't horrible after October 7th. We had maybe one person saying something offensive, but for the most part it was honestly ignored. (That is a whole other issue I could get into, but I'm not going to go there.)

When I left America at the end of January, I was fully aware of the rise in anti-Semitism. I knew there were protests with anti-Semitic agendas behind them and I knew people were tearing down posters of kidnapped children, but yet it still didn't feel completely real. I always try to stay away from social media because I know it won't do me any good seeing all the propaganda that my fellow peers so easily believe. But these past couple of weeks I've found my whole social media being taken over by news about the encampments on college grounds in the US. I would have never thought that I would feel safer in a country that is in the middle of a war than in my own country at home. As someone who is going to college in two years and whose sister is going to college this upcoming fall, I genuinely cannot name a college where I would feel safe right now.

Judaism is and will always be one of the biggest parts of my identity and I never will allow myself to be in a place where I feel I need to hide that part of my identity in order to be safe. Coming to Israel in the middle of a war was scary but going back to a country where people don't believe in the right of my people's country to exist – therefore implying they don't think I should exist – is much more terrifying. After learning extensively about the Holocaust and traveling to Poland to bear witness and see the disgusting genocide of the Holocaust, it has been incredibly disappointing and scary to see my generation buy into a cycle of anti-Semitic propaganda just like so many Germans citizens who believed the Nazi "activist" agenda. In no world will it ever be okay to call for the elimination of the Jews and to support a terrorist organization.

As I arrive home with the war ongoing, I along with my peers from TRY feel it is our responsibility to help educate our peers who didn't have the privilege to spend four months in Israel learning about Jewish history, life in Israel, and a close look at the conflicts in the Middle East. We are the future; we are the hope for the Jewish people and need to take on our role of educating, supporting, and helping to promote a love for the Jewish people and the state of Israel. I am looking forward to the challenge and opportunity. Am Yisrael Chai.
